

Has Heathrow ever heard of climate crisis?

Referring to Rob Gray's response concerning Heathrow expansion, it does seem that because they are attempting to alleviate environmental concerns by improving public transport in the area and other measures, then they believe that they have a right to expand Heathrow and its third runway, destroying habitat for wildlife and the village of Sipson in order for the airport to fly 50 per cent more aircraft in and out of Heathrow.

If aircraft were a country they would be the third most polluting country in the world.

Also 20 of the world's hottest years on record have occurred during the last 22 years.

It seems Heathrow has never heard of the climate change protests or the Extinction rebellion protests.

Will all planes be carbon neutral by 2050?

What an achievement if Heathrow is the first airport with a ultra low emissions zone by 2022, only for the aircraft to wipe out the benefits in seconds.

We definitely have an environmental problem that we have created and the Government must stop the third runway expansion and start to look at fair competition between the railway and the air travel for local journeys.

Bruce Adams
Cox Green Lane
Maidenhead